Not quite 'Carmegaddon'

Local motorists apparently take 'Fix 50' message to heart, tweak their commute routines

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento officials have relaxed a bit since last week, when the beginning of the "Fix 50" freeway project threatened to jam up local streets.

"The traffic is running smoothly and its going great," reported Lieutenant Tod Sockman of the West Sacramento Police Department. He credited motorists for "varying their routes and changing their commute times," and asked them to "continue doing what you're doing."

When CalTrans launched the project – initially closing all but one lane of eastbound U.S. 50 near downtown Sacramento – the city was ready for manual control of backed-up local intersections.

"We had 12 traffic people assigned to key locations where we thought it might back up," said Sockman. "When it got to the point where traffic would back up, we put flashing red lights at the intersection and took over manual control."

Residents take a look at West Sac's long-term plans

At a public workshop Monday evening, Mayor Cabaldon asked West Sacramento residents to ask what they wanted their city to look like in the future. The city is updating its long-term 'general plan,' which has a 20-year horizon. (News-Ledger photo)

About 75 citizens attended a meeting Monday evening to provide input on the West Sacramento's long-range "general plan," and to make comments four specific planning projects. Hosted by the city's planning department, the workshop took place in the community center on West Capitol Avenue.

Several residents asked questions and showed concern about new growth bringing about more traffic problems, and about the city's level of protection from floods.

Mayor Christopher Cabaldon attended briefly.

"The general plan, as you'll hear, is one of the most important plans we have in the city," Cabaldon told the crowd. "It is a long-term plan. It goes to 2035 – but that doesn't mean nothing is going to happen until July of 2034."

He asked participants at the workshop to envision the city they want.

"What do you want this place to be like, in value-based terms?," Cabaldon asked. "What do you want your neighborhoods to be like?"

The mayor himself said the future city ought not to be "all residential suburbs" or "just rural, with horses," but ought to be combined of different elements, including housing opportunities for the different stages of life.

West Sacramento's city manager for the past two years is Martin Tuttle, a former executive with the Sacramento Area Council of Governments (SACOG). Tuttle talked to the crowd about the "Blueprint," a six-county regional guide to future development.

The Blueprint aims to promote transit-oriented development, encouraging compact growth near transportation options and attempting to avoid sprawl into farmlands.

"This community has incredible assets," said Tuttle of West Sacramento, including "the port area, the riverfront and the emerging downtown area. . . You really are seeing more compact development, more development near transit. When we started 'Blueprint,' Sacramento was on its way to 35 miles per day of driving per person. Now it's around 21 miles."

David Tilley, the city's senior planner, explained that the general plan contains a number of distinct elements – most mandated by the state. The plan includes a "preferred

They called it "Horsin' Around for Literacy."

The regional district of Rotary International asked its local chapters, like the Centennial Rotary Club in West Sacramento, to do something to improve literacy among children. So the local chapter several months ago launched a two-pronged, equestrian attack.

Explained Don Schatzel of Rotary:

"Thanks to support from the Southport PTO (parent-teacher organization) and the West Sacramento Trail Riders Association, we bought a book for every second grader at Southport and Westmore Oaks – books with horses in them. Now, in the spring, they get horses. We're trying to teach it, see it, read it."

The Southport students came to Westmore Oaks (the "old" River City High campus on Clarendon Street) for a special assembly Thursday morning. On the school's football track were a bunch of horse trailers, horses and riders.

Wrestling with a struggling microphone system on a windy day, emcee Roberta Firoved introduced each horse and rider to the attentive students. She also explained some things about horses, including why their eyes are on the sides of their heads (as a prey animal, horses need to keep watch for predators) and how to measure a horse's height (by using "hands"). Among the horse teams were:

My Back Pages

Note: This past week longtime West Sacramento resident Marino Pierucci passed away at the age of 91. Over Marino's long and eventful life he played an important role in how our city grew and prospered and was also the Assistant Superintendent for Business Services for the Washington Unified School District until his retirement in 1981. He was an incredibly bright, interesting and fun person to spend time with and the following article about him and his beloved wife of 72 years, Mary, is reprinted below in his memory. Marino's warmth and easy smile never failed to light up a room and he will be greatly missed by all those who knew and loved him.

Marino Pierucci's Italian parents, Joseph and Ida, moved to Broderick in the late 1920s.

"My father actually came to the United States shortly after World War One," remembered Marino, "and he met my mother a few years later, while he was working on a farm in Courtland that was owned by my mother's sister and cousin. My mother had originally left Italy with the help of an old world matchmaker, who had arranged for her to marry a man who wasn't my father. But when my parents met, my mother decided to marry my father instead, and he ended up having to pay the $350 owed the matchmaker."

By 1931, the Pierucci's had established themselves in Broderick and Joseph built a new two-story home for his growing family on 6th Street.

"We lived upstairs," recalled Marino, "and my father and mother ran a little Italian restaurant downstairs. It was really a pretty idyllic life. Other Italian families, most of whom were all from the same part of northern Italy, lived all around us and my brothers and I had lots of friends. We would all go fishing at Fat Jack's Pond, or shoot marbles on this little corner lot that we had made as smooth as a pool table, or we would go swimming at our favorite swimming hole, which was between two wing dams on the nearby Sacramento River. Our parents didn't want us swimming in the river so we always had to leave our bathing suits at home, but that didn't stop us -- we just took off all our clothes and jumped in. We also played a lot of softball in the streets and regularly walked across the old I Street Bridge to go to the movies in downtown Sacramento, which cost all of five cents back then."

'Other Italian families, most of whom were all from the same part of northern Italy, lived all around us and my brothers and I had lots of friends. We would all go fishing at Fat Jack's Pond, or shoot marbles. . .'

In 1941 Marino spotted a pretty young girl walking in front of his house. They struck up a conversation and Marino quickly learned that her name was Mary and that she was staying at her brother's house, which was only a few blocks away.

"Mary lived on a farm about 50 miles away, near Lincoln," recalled Marino, "but she stayed with her brother in Broderick during canning season. When there was no more work, she would have to go home, but I did my best to keep seeing her, including sending her a round trip bus ticket back to her brother's house as often as I could. We would go to dances and the movies and always have a good time, and come this August, we will have been married 57 years."

"What wasn't there to like about him?" said Mary with a warm smile. "From the very beginning, he was extremely kind and wonderfully Italian!"

Like with most young people of Marino and Mary's generation, World War Two soon interrupted their lives.

"In 1943 I was drafted into the Army Air Corp and I trained to be a gunner radio operator," said Marino. "Along with thousands of other guys from around the country, I was sent to radio school in Chicago, where we all stayed in the Stevens Hotel, which was right across the street from Soldier's Field. I ended up being a gunnery school instructor and I will never forget how wonderful the people of Chicago were to soldiers. They gave us free tickets to baseball and football games, let us ride all the public transportation for free, and basically wouldn't let us spend a dime of our own money. Unfortunately, not everyone in my family was as lucky as me. My brother Ernie, who was a wonderful person and athlete, was killed in 1945 during a B26 strike over Cologne, Germany."

After the war, Marino went back to his job working for the Southern Pacific Railroad, but it wasn't long before he decided to take advantage of the GI Bill and go to college.

"The GI Bill was such a blessing for so many returning veterans," said Marino. "College would have been impossible for most of us without it, and I really studied hard once I was admitted. I also got to play on the Sacramento City and Sacramento State baseball teams, which was a lot of fun, and shortly after I graduated, Jake Misfeldt offered me my first teach-

Two Southport students win honors for messages of peace

Two students from Southport Elementary School are among the winners in this year's "Inspirational Message of Peace" contest sponsored by the National Park Service and International World Peace Rose Gardens.

The contest was in conjunction with the annual celebration of the "I Have a Dream" garden at the Martin Luther King, Jr., national historic site in Atlanta.

More than 1,900 students participated internationally, and 26 winners were selected. Two were from Southport Elementary.

They were first-grader Rylee Carter and seventh-grader Sydney Logsdon. The pair were judged to have excelled in meeting the criteria of the poem contest, including addressing a message involving peace or Martin Luther King, Jr., or Coretta Scott King, in 35

ing job in the Washington Unified School District. To earn a little extra money, I even drove the buses to and from school. I would pick up the kids in the morning, teach most of them during the day, and then drive them home."

Marino quickly went from being a classroom teacher at old West Acres School to being its vice principal. Then he was made the principal at the new Westfield Village Elementary School and by 1956, he was the Assistant Superintendent for Business Services for the whole district, a position he held until his retirement in 1981.

"Those were really great years," recalled Marino. "Not only was I privileged to work with some very dedicated educators, but in the 1950s, we were able to use a government matching funds program to build a number of new schools. Unfortunately, in the 1960s, our student enrollment dropped off dramatically and we had to consolidate some of those facilities, but I really enjoyed all the years I spent working to improve the public schools in the this area. It was a very rewarding career."

Since his retirement, Marino has stayed active in the community by being a member of the Planning Commission, which he has served on since West Sacramento became a city. He also likes to golf and help Mary transport their grandchildren from activity to activity.

"Mary and I have both been blessed with good health," said Marino, "and our grandchildren are very active and doing their best to keep us young."

'Weather spotter' training tonight in Esparto

From the County of Yolo

The Yolo County Office of Emergency Services and the National Weather Service want to train you to become a weather spotter tonight, 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in Marsh Hall at Esparto High School, located at 17121 Yolo Avenue in Esparto.

Storm spotters play a valuable role in the severe weather warning process. The National Weather Service relies on visual observations from spotters to provide critical information that would otherwise not be available to forecasters. Spotter reports are combined with data from doppler radar and satellite pictures to provide a complete understanding of severe storms and their impact on the public.

During the free training, sponsored by the Yolo County Office of Emergency Services, future weather spotters will learn:

- How to observe, recognize and report severe weather;
- What severe weather types are experienced in the Yolo County area;
- How to volunteer for Project SKYARM™ to help keep local communities safe;
- Severe weather safety tips; and
- Operations of the National Weather Service

Spotter guides, cloud charts and severe weather pamphlets will be provided to potential new weather spotters, as well as applications to become a volunteer weather spotter. Once an application is received, a spotter number I assigned and an information packet sent.

There will also be opportunity during the training to discuss and join the Community Collaborative Rain, Hail and Snow Network – a unique, non-profit, community-based network of volunteers of all ages and backgrounds working together to measure and map precipitation (rain, hail and snow) across the U.S.

For more information and to RSVP, contact Eric Kurth (eric.kurth@noaa.gov) with the National Weather Service Forecast Office in Sacramento.

rines who wondered how the Corps to which they had sworn fidelity could have betrayed that trust to such a level. The story moves from the initial reports of solvents found in the groundwater to the section of the Jacksonville City Cemetery known as "Baby Heaven," so named because of the alarming number of miscarriages interred there.

This extremely disturbing book demands the military hold itself accountable for the health and safety of its bases and tenants so that health disasters like the one at Camp Lejeune never happen again.

DINING, TRAVEL & ENTERTAINMENT

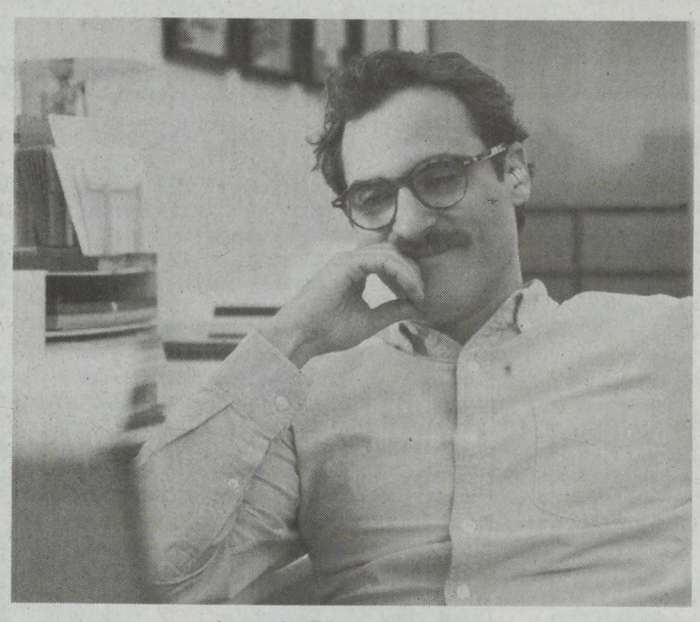
COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS
BY SAM STRUCKHOFF

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Her" (R) -- In the nearish future, computers become so adept at human interaction that it's hard to tell the difference between a machine and a real personality. Theodore (Joaquin Phoenix) is a lonely, divorced writer who falls in love with the operating system of his new computer. To be fair, Sam -- as the software is called -- knows every intimate detail of Theodore's online life, she reads his emails, loves his sense of humor, asks thoughtful questions ... and she's voiced by Scarlett Johansson.

Writer/director Spike Jonze ("Adaptation," "Being John Malkovich") took home both the Oscar and Golden Globe for best original screenplay because of "Her." The film uses the wacky premise to get at the heart of bigger ideas about how we relate to technology, and how love works between humans.

"That Awkward Moment" (R) -- This is one of those romantic comedies where the characters are adults, but all of the jokes and commentary were clearly designed by adolescents.



Joaquin Phoenix in 'Her'

Zac Efron, Michael B. Jordan and Miles Teller play a trio of buds in their mid-20s, just pallin' around New York City, picking up chicks, cracking (lame) jokes and dodging emotional entanglements. This movie would be hilarious as a parody of the shallow lessons taught by romcoms, but that's not how it tries to be funny -- instead you get a recurring bit about how one of the guys always leaves a smell in the bathroom.

"Generation Iron" (PG-13) -- The Mr. Olympia bodybuilding competition draws contenders from all over the world, and it was the stage that helped make Arnold Schwarzenegger into a superstar. The highest level of competitive bodybuilding demands an amazing level of skill and commitment. This documentary follows seven contestants in the 2013 Mr. Olympia as they forge their muscles and discuss what drives them. Narrated by Mickey Rourke, the movie finds what makes bodybuilding such a unique world.

DOG OF THE WEEK

"I Frankenstein" (PG-13) -- After years colorless crap about vampires, zombies, werewolves and every tired ghoul in between, Hollywood now has to retire the "Monster Reboot" strategy. It goes like this: Dig up an old monster and make the story "gritty" or "young adult" without any regard for what made the source material great. Now, Frankenstein's monster (Aaron Eckhart) has been resurrected into a pulpy gray world where he punches animated demons.

The Monster now goes by "Adam Frankenstein," for, you know, forms and stuff. He has survived into the modern era, and he's become instrumental in a never-ending war between good gargoyles and bad demons. Eckhart is totally committed to his grimacing, but it's not enough to save this humorless clone of the tapped-out "Underworld" franchise.

"A Trust Betrayed: The Untold Story of Camp Lejeune and the Poisoning of Generations of Marines and Their Families"

by Mike Magner
(Da Capo Press/A Merloyd Lawrence Book, $27.50)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

"A Trust Betrayed" is the shocking, true story of an environmental disaster at Camp Lejeune that poisoned generations of U.S. Marines and triggered one of the largest hazardous waste exposures in history.

Author Mike Magner was investigating contaminated military bases when he learned about Tom Townsend, a former Marine officer who was stationed at Camp Lejeune in the late 1960s. Townsend and his wife lost an infant son to birth defects and other health problems, and only years later discovered the death likely was caused by contaminated drinking water on the South Carolina base. Magner began uncovering similar situations involving Marines and their families, many suffering from serious illnesses such as lymphoma and birth defects.

According to Magner, it was the statistics that told the shocking story. For example, a horrifying number of Camp Lejeune men developed breast cancer while living at the base. Worse yet, even after the health dangers became evident, the military brass reacted slowly and even shirked responsibility for their own negligence. There were even cases of so-called scientific studies manipulated by people with power, money and secrets to hide.

"A Trust Betrayed" shifts between the slow-moving cogs of military bureaucracy and the harrowing reports of the afflicted --

The Kitchen Diva BY Angela Shelf Medearis

Mother's Day the Healthy Way

Mother's Day is a wonderful time to celebrate mothers and mothers-to-be. It's also a good time for women who want to become pregnant to focus on a plan for a healthy future. To have a healthy baby, you should practice good nutrition before, during and after pregnancy. The Dietary Guidelines for Americans include recommendations that can help women consume adequate nutrients, limit possible toxins and be physically active.

Women of childbearing age who may become pregnant:
¥ For adequate iron intake, eat food high in heme-iron (such as meats) and iron-rich plant foods (dark green, leafy vegetables such as spinach) or iron-fortified foods. To help increase the absorption of iron from plants and iron-fortified foods, pair them with ones high in vitamin C.
¥ To decrease the risk of birth defects, consume 400 mcg (micrograms) of folic acid daily from fortified foods or supplements, in addition to eating foods that contain folate. Folate is a naturally occurring form of vitamin B-9, found in food, while folic acid is synthetically produced. As with most vitamins, the natural form is preferred, and better for absorption. It is required for numerous body functions, including DNA synthesis and repair, cell division and cell growth. A deficiency of vitamin B-9 can lead to anemia in adults, and slower development in children.
¥ Limit fish consumption to two servings per week to avoid high levels of mercury. Include fish or shellfish that is low in mercury, such as shrimp, light canned tuna, salmon, pollock and catfish.
¥ Avoid consuming alcoholic beverages.

Pregnant women:
¥ To decrease the risk of birth defects, consume 600 mcg per day of vitamin B9 from fortified foods or supplements, in addition to consuming foods that naturally contain folate. Vitamin B-9 is especially important for proper fetal development.
¥ If no medical or obstetric complications are present, do at least 30 minutes of moderate-intensity physical activity on most, if not all, days of the week.
¥ Avoid physical activity that has a high risk of falling or abdominal trauma.
¥ Limit fish consumption to two servings per week to avoid high levels of mercury. Include fish or shellfish that is low in mercury.
¥ Avoid consuming alcoholic beverages.
¥ Avoid eating or drinking unpasteurized milk or any products made from unpasteurized milk; raw or partially cooked eggs, or foods that contain raw eggs; raw or undercooked meat and poultry; raw or undercooked fish or shellfish; unpasteurized juices; raw sprouts.
¥ Eat certain deli meats and hot dogs/frankfurters only if they have been reheated to steaming hot.

Breastfeeding women:
¥ If you need to lose weight, moderate weight reduction is safe and does not compromise weight gain for your nursing infant.
¥ Regular exercise does not negatively affect the mother's ability to breastfeed successfully.
¥ Limit fish consumption to two servings per week to avoid high levels of mercury. Seafood such as shrimp, light canned tuna, salmon, pollock and catfish are low in mercury.
¥ Avoid alcohol.

Have a happy and healthy Mother's Day!

BABY BUMP SALAD

This delicious salad features mixed greens with avocados and chickpeas, and orange juice dressing -- foods that are high in vitamin B9, a water-soluble B vitamin with many rich, natural sources and especially important for women of childbearing age and pregnant women.

4 cups of mixed greens (spinach, romaine and arugula)
2 large avocados, peeled and sliced
1 (15-ounce) can chickpeas, drained and rinsed
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon fresh ground black pepper
1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 cup whole-wheat croutons

Toss ingredients together in a large bowl. Drizzle with Orange Juice dressing. Makes 4 servings.

For the Orange Juice Dressing:
1/4 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons canola oil
2 tablespoons white or dark balsamic vinegar
1 tablespoon Dijon-style prepared mustard
2 teaspoons honey
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon cracked black pepper

1. In a small jar with a tight-fitting cover, combine the orange juice, oil, vinegar, mustard, honey, salt and pepper. Cover and shake well until combined. Makes 4 servings.
2. To store, refrigerate for up to 1 week. Shake well before serving.

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. NOTICE OF HEARING
May 15, 2014

The West Sacramento Planning Commission will consider the following matters on Thursday, May 15, 2014, at West Sacramento Civic Center, City Council Chambers, 1110 West Capitol Avenue, West Sacramento, California, at the times as specified or as soon thereafter as the matters may be heard:

6:00 p.m.

REGULAR AGENDA

1. Public Hearing and adoption of Ordinance 14-1PC Regarding Minor Updates to the Wireless Telecommunications Facility Policy (Allen)

The City of West Sacramento adopted revisions to its Wireless Telecommunications Facility Policy in late 2013. At the April 3, 2014 Planning Commission meeting, the Commission held a public workshop on two new wireless telecommunication facilities. Pursuant to the discussion that occurred during the workshop, the Commission requested that staff prepare revisions to the wireless policy regarding setbacks for new wireless facilities in and around residentially zoned areas.

2. Public Workshop on the West Capitol Connections Study (Yancey)

In 1996, the Washington Specific Plan identified the intersection at 5th St and West Capitol Avenue as an alignment problem for West Capitol Avenue upon the construction of an at-grade intersection at Tower Bridge Gateway and 5th St. In 2012, the City completed the construction of the at-grade intersection at 5th St and Tower Bridge Gateway. As part of two grant-funded planning efforts, staff and City consultant Fehr and Peers have analyzed the impacts of the existing configuration, studied three short-term and long-term solutions for West Capitol Avenue circulation and are prepared to recommend a configuration for inclusion in traffic analysis for the Washington Specific Plan update. Staff will be presenting the contents of the West Capitol Connections Study, the analyzed alternatives and staff's recommendation in order to solicit guidance and direction from the Planning Commission.

3. Public Workshop on Changes to the City's Zoning Ordinance (WSMC Title 17) Regarding Retail Sales of Firearms and Ammunition (Tilley)

Staff will present options for potential changes to those zones where retail sales of firearms and ammunition would be permitted (conditionally and/or principally permitted). Development and operating standards for businesses engaged in retail firearms and ammunition sales will also be considered.

David Tilley, Secretary
West Sacramento Planning Commission

If you disagree with the decision of the planning commission, you have a right of appeal. Only persons who participated in the review process by submitting written testimony or oral testimony at the public hearing, may appeal. Appeals are limited to those issues raised at the planning commission meeting. If you challenge any of the above items in court, you may be limited to raising only those issues you or someone else raised at the public hearing described in this notice, or in written correspondence delivered to the City of West Sacramento at, or prior to, the public hearing.

TRAFFIC OUTLOOK from page one

That happened, for example, at a congested Park Boulevard/Jefferson Boulevard intersection, where much of West Sacramento gets on the freeway to go to work in the morning.

The first day saw five intersections under traffic control during morning hours, when motorists tend to head east into Sacramento to their jobs. CalTrans quickly reopened one more lane on 50. On the second day, only three local intersections were being directed by hand, and on the third day, none.

The city also brought in a "command post" – a mobile operations center still parked next to city hall.

"It's got computers, monitors and a radio for dispatch," said Sockman. "We have a representative from police, fire, public works and AMR (the local ambulance company). We also have a direct line to Sacramento dispatch."

The command post could watch traffic on city streets and help direct emergency vehicles to the best paths through them.

"For example, on the first day, there was a guy who needed to get the hospital from near West Capitol Avenue and Harbor Boulevard," said Sockman. "The cameras were able to help get (the ambulance) the best route."

Motorists still need to think twice about going eastbound on 50 from Sacramento. It's still a problem, especially during the commute hours. But worries that West Sac streets would be deluged with motorists on freeway detours have not fully been born out.

The command post is now idle, pending any new traffic emergencies.

Starting May 27, CalTrans is scheduled to switch its roadwork to the westbound side of U.S. 50, and that's expected to have less effect on West Sacramento, since this city will be on the "outfeed" side of any bottleneck. But Sockman said the command post will be re-staffed and ready for action again, just in case.

CalTrans has agreed to reimburse the city up to $750,000 for extra staffing and other impacts of the project.

The entire freeway project is scheduled to finish on June 25. For more information on the highway repair project, visit www.fix50.com. The City has traffic cameras on its website, www.cityofwestsacramento.org.

riders' president) with his quarterhorse "Jiggers."

Jiggers "loves to follow Ron around the pasture like a puppy," said Firoved.

-- Rod Beckwith with a mule names "Socks." A mule is a cross produced from a male donkey and female horse, explained Firoved.

-- A pair of impressive Belgian draft horses, weighing in at 1,600 and 1,800 pounds, respectively.

-- And a pony.

Jason Williams, an employee of the Bureau of Land Management, showed a little bit about how he helped round up wild horses with help from his dog "Hannah." He rode "Stinger," a horse born wild and bearing a BLM brand on its neck. He told the kids how he used his dog to help round up a wild horse.

"If I say 'come by,' she will go around the horse to the left," said Williams. Another command sends Hannah to the right of the targeted animal. Hannah is prone to giving a horse a little nip on the heels as he scoots past, helping to herd the animal.

"A lot of times, that's what I'll do to gather horses," said Williams.

After the talk, kids were invited to line up on one side of a fence while the horses came by in touching distance along the other:

"Read it, see it, touch it."

land use alternative," a climate change plan and other elements.

"Our general plan will keep the child care element (in) and also have a 'healthy communities' element," reported Tilley. Cities are required to create a general plan and update it periodically.

He introduced the four specific project areas being shown off at the workshop, inviting residents to look at drawings, chat with staff and leave comments, which staff would try to tabulate afterward.

The "Stone Lock District," he said, surrounds the barge canal near Jefferson Boulevard, and includes the bluffs known as "Honda Hills" often used by motorcyclists.

"This is roughly 210 acres," said Tilley. "It could be ripe for a master plan of some sort."

An earlier plan to jointly develop Stone Lock with the Cordish Company expired during the economic downturn.

"Seaway" includes about 300 acres west of Lowe's, on Port of West Sacramento property along Southport Parkway. It has been zoned for industrial and business park uses.

"It's on the table," Tilley said. "We want to hear what you think is best for the community."

The "Liberty Specific Plan" is the only one of the four projects with a working developer on board. The acreage is east of the Clarksburg Trail in Southport, between Linden Road to the north and Davis Road to the south. It could hold up to 1,900 residential units.

"This is the last major piece in Southport that's unentitled," said Tilley.

Lastly mentioned was "Pioneer Bluffs."

"This is the area along South River Road south of 15th Street, going down to where it presently dead-ends."

This stretch is home to "legacy uses," said Tilley, including the city's old wastewater treatment plant and industrial uses including petroleum "tank farms."

"It's been long-planned to transition to mixed-use, but the question is how do we do that," said Tilley. "It's likely to be served by not one, but two new bridges: the South River Road Bridge, and another, perhaps in the area of 15th Street, crossing from Sacramento."

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento River registered five feet six inches, United States gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday. This is an extraordinary record for this time of the year, seldom or never before seen in this section of the state. It is reported that the snow level at the summit is less than thirty-seven inches, where formerly anything under 100 inches was considered a light fall of snow. N. R. Taylor, meteorologist, says an unusual condition exists in the Sacramento River during this winter.

"For the first time in the history of the weather bureau," said Taylor, "the movement of the tide in the Sacramento River has been visible to the naked eye every month of the winter. Although a tide has always been perceptible when the river was measured with instruments, this is the first time it has been noticeable to the naked eye for every month during an entire winter. The cause of this phenomenon is the unusually low condition of the river at a time of the year when it should be high."

As already forecast by the weather bureau all the rivers in the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys will maintain an unusually small flow during the summer months.

Last Tuesday at the home of Miss Ruth Maxwell in West Sacramento a wedding took place which united her in marriage with Willard McClelland of Sacramento. The ceremony was performed at 6 p. m., after which a reception was held at the home of the bride. The young couple left on the evening train for their honeymoon in San Francisco and other bay points.

Only a few intimate friends of the family were present at the ceremony.

An automobile was upset on Fifth street near Ann last Tuesday resulting in the damaging of the car and slight injury to the owner. The car was righted and went off under the control of the owner on its way west out of town.

On complaint of Pio Piorines of West Sacramento, Theodore Rockwood and Joe Hall were arrested by Constable Buckingham last Tuesday on a charge of burglary. It seems that these men had been seen in the neighborhood of the Piorines property and that soon thereafter some articles were missing, occasioning the complaint. against the men. They were represented by Attorney James F. Gaffney of Sacramento when they made their appearance last Wednesday before Judge Barry.

Last Friday John Barbosa Silva, a colored gentleman of Sacramento, was fined $25 by Judge Barry on pleading guilty to petty larceny for stealing two turkeys from John Azevedo last December 24th. Azevedo testified that Silva had been seen with the turkeys and witnesses were called to show that he had taken two to Sacramento when a Northern Electric train was stopped by him at Vin Station.

Last Monday Joe Carillo was fined $25 on a charge of battery, inflicted on Annie Brush, who swore to the complaint. The assault took place in a scow on the river near the M street bridge, and on being arrested Carillo got out on bonds of $50 after having spent a ight in the local jail. Carillo paid his fine and Annie was ordered by the judge to get out of town as soon as possible.

Sheriff J. W. Monroe was a visitor in Washington yesterday summoning witnesses and jurors for the trial of David Buchfinck, which will come up in Judge Harrison's court in Woodland today.

Buchfinck is the man accused of stabbing Settino Lorenzini about a month ago at the latter's home on Mary street. Settino has entirely recovered from the effects of the wound inflicted on him at the time of the assault and will be present at the trial tomorrow.

The ladies of Washington have been attending the cooking demonstration held in the post office during the past week in goodly numbers. Every day a large crowd of housewives who contemplate installing gas cooking apparatus in their homes have been attending the cooking demonstrations given by Miss Emmiline Rich. Yesterday was the last day these demonstration will be given, and installations of meters and gas stoves goes on steadfastly in the homes of the town.

A large crowd of enthusiastic supporters attended the dance given by the volunteer firemen of Washington in the town hall last Saturday night. The firemen expressed complete satisfaction at the attendance and at the manner in which the dance was conducted and they took particular pains in seeing that the entertainment was a social as well as a financial success. An orchestra of six pieces played for the dance.

Jack Reuther has had his lot filled at the corner of Third and Elizabeth streets in preparation for building a home and shop on the property. A large oak tree was cut down to accommodate the design of building selected by Reuther, and many people in the neighborhood were sorry to see this splendid shade being lost to the neighborhood. Reuther promises to plant young shade trees around the location as soon as his building is completed.

EVERY CITIZEN SHOULD REGISTER NOW, DELAY IS DANGEROUS

Important elections are coming along this year, so important that any man or woman who has an interest in the welfare of the country and his own welfare should take immediate steps to register so that when the time comes for voting, they may not regret their negligence.

An election at the end of March will return a school trustee in Washington.

An election on the first Monday in April will return a fire commissioner.

An election on May 6th will return presidential delegates to the national conventions. And subsequently there will be other elections that are vitally important to every voter and taxpayer of Yolo county.

Any man or woman blessed with the privilege of casting a ballot at any and all of these elections should deem it a privilege but unless they register now they may be prevented from expressing an opinion on who is to be next president of the United States or whether the people want prohibition for the United States or whether the constitution might be amended to curtail more liberties of the people.

Surely these things are important enough for every citizen to register and vote when the proper time arrives.

Constable Buckingham is ready at most any time to receive registrations in this district.

CLAIMS ALLOWED BY YOLO SUPERVISORS

The following claims against Yolo County were approved, and allowed and ordered paid at the meeting of the supervisors held in Woodland, February 19th.

Road district No. 1—Coast Rock & Gravel Co., crushed rock, $310.28 Gordon, W. P., roadwork, $20 Union Oil Co., gasoline, $175.44.

BUCKINGHAM LOCATES MISSING SACRAMENTO GIRL

Constable Henry Buckingham of Washington, found the two young who were reported missing from Del Paso district in Sacramento on Tuesday. The girls were found entering the city of Sacramento from the Washington side and when questioned they stated that they were out for a jaunt, but they were held at the Sacramento city jail pending receipt of word from their parents.

SOFT DRINK LICENSES GRANTED

The supervisors of Yolo county at a meeting last Monday, March 3rd granted soft drink licenses to Lola D. Hart and to J. P. Johnson of this district.

The Hart place is located along the state highway in West Sacramento. and Johnson will conduct the soft drink emporium at the service station of Frazer and Doyle on Fifth street.

ELECTION FOR FIRE COMMISSIONERS MONDAY APRIL 7TH

On the first Monday of April in each year fire commissioners are elected in special districts like that of Washington. Monday April 7th will therefore, be the next election day for the return of commissioners to handle the affairs of the fire district of Washington.

Those now holding office are Dave Barry, Ray Peak and William Bartle.

Bartle has just been moved to Sparks, Nev. by the Southern Pacific company, where he expects to be retained for at least a year and perhaps longer. It will therefore be necessary to return another man to fill his place as fire commissioner of the town.

Barry will likely be a candidate to succeed himself again, but Peek has not yet made any announcement whether he desires to fill the place or to permit some other taxpayer to take his place.

The efficient manner in which the affairs of the fire commissioners have been handled during the past year leaves the condition of the Volunteer Fire Department in good shape.

CLARKSBURG DISTRICT ASKS BETTER ROAD OUTLETS

At the meeting of the board of supervisors of Yolo county held in Woodland last Monday a large delegation of Clarksburg citizens appeared before the board asking better roads for their district so that the great output of crops might be more easily conveyed to the markets in Sacramento.

The delegation was very well received by the board of supervisors but explanation was made that at this time the funds in the county treasury would not permit of immediate work on any of the roads of the district.

Supervisors promised however that following the beginning of the new fiscal year on July 1st immediate steps would be taken to relieve the situation explained by residents of the Netherlands district.

It was explained to those taxpayers that the road on the levee between Freeport and Clarksburg, a distance of three miles would be paved during the coming summer and that later on the road extending from Riverview to Freeport would be finished like the paved road extending from West Sacramento to Riverview.

Supervisor Leinberger draws attention to the fact that within the last four years his district has been greatly favored by the Yolo board of supervisors in a matter of road appropriations. In that period not less than $400,000 has been spent on the roads in the first district. Most of this money was taken out of the general tax levy although about $170,000 of it was taken out of the bond issue voted four years ago in the amount of $1,000,000.

Roads in this section of Yolo county have been hard to pave owing to the condition of the soil and the fact that most of those roads have to be constructed on built up levees or in reclamation districts where no road formerly existed. Expenditures for this class of road naturally cost higher than where a base formerly existed and where the surfacing was more or less hardened with travel.

The promise of the board to take immediate care of the taxpayers of Clarksburg was kindly received and the delegation left the court house feeling satisfied that they would get the necessary service as soon as possible.

YOLO MEN WILL HAVE SAY IN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

Two Yolo County men in R. F. Schmeiser of Davis and Henry Brinck of Winters, were chosen as members of the directorate of the California Life Insurance Company of Sacramento, of which Marshall Diggs, former Woodlander, is head. Supervisor L. E. Hutchings of this city, one of the stockholders, was in attendance upon the meeting held on the twelfth floor of the new Life building at Tenth and J streets. The following directors were elected.

Marshall Diggs, Henry Brinck, D. I. Waltz, Henry Haile, C. S. Brooks, L. L. McCoy, F. W. Stall, J. R. Kruse, R. F. Schmeiser, A. E. Burge, R. T. McKisick, E. F. Dalton, F. M. Grimshaw, C. E. McLaughlin, G. C. Meckfessel, A. W. Graves and G. H. Menke.

Distilling has become so common in Los Angeles that the price of whiskey has been reduced to five cents a drink.

QUARANTINE FOR HOOF AND MOUTH DISEASE REMOVED HERE

The guards that had been placed on the Southern Pacific bridge and on the M Street bridge during the past ten days under the quarantine against hoof and mouth disease have been removed by the state authorities.

No guards had been placed on the bridges by Sacramento county hence stock owners are at liberty to convey their livestock to and from the Sacramento markets.

Warren D. Norton, Yolo farm advisor received the following telegram yesterday from J. J. Frey, veterinarian in charge of the foot and mouth control in Central California and stationed at Oakland, wherein a review of the complete situation is set forth:

Infected herds since last report—Solano one herd, seventy-three cattle. Contra Costa—six herds, two hundred thirty-two cattle, four hogs, eight goats, one sheep, making a total infected herds of sixty-four. Two thousand eight hundred seven cattle, five sheep, six thousand six hundred twenty-nine hogs, twenty-seven goats, total infected animals nine thousand four hundred sixty-eight. Slaughtered since last report eleven herds, total of one thousand five hundred thirty-one hogs, seven hundred sixty-six cattle, four goats, five sheep. Disinfection well under way. State department of agriculture and United States biological survey men have thrown out a line of defense one mile in front of quarantine line to present draft of predatory animals from infected areas.

G. H. Hecke, who has so ably directed the fight to halt the cattle plague, was in Woodland this morning. He reported that the largest single herd yet slaughtered in the war against the foot and mouth disease was killed yesterday, when the rifle squad destroyed 520 head of cattle at the McMahon ranch in San Pablo, Contra Costa county.

Most of the cattle were already known to be infected with the plague, and the destruction of the entire herd is believed to have removed a serious menace in that particular area.

Premises in Berkeley and Richmond where infected animals have been killed were thoroughly disinfected yesterday.

WOODLAND VOTERS SLOW IN REGISTERING

Woodland, March 6.—Voters apparently are waking up to the realization that the time is getting short for registering. Clerk Harry Saunders is doing a lively business.

It is impossible to state accurately how many in Yolo County have registered," said Saunders. "We have deputy registrars in nearly every district, and have had no reports from them."

A safe estimate would be that less than one-third of the total number of persons in Yolo county eligible to vote have registered thus far, according to those familiar with the situation.

Women's clubs are beginning to consider the matter and may bring about better results.

Road alert

Caltrans is shutting down lanes along a stretch of the U.S. 50 freeway in Sacramento, and that is expected to cause trouble not only on local freeways, but on West Sacramento city streets such as Jefferson and Harbor boulevards, 5th Street, the Tower Bridge Gateway and West Capitol Avenue.

Construction is scheduled from April 22 to June 25. The first phase involves closing some eastbound lanes on U.S. 50 in downtown Sacramento, sometimes leading to backups into West Sacramento during peak hours.

For details, visit www.fix50.com.

To take a peak at how West Sacramento's roadways are handling the traffic, check out the live cameras at the city's website, www.cityofwestsacramento.org.

Got books?

The library at River City High School could use your help stocking the shelves with books – particularly biographies.

If you have an extra copy of a book about such persons as the Barack or Michele Obama, current sports or popular culture icons, people from the tech world such as Steve Jobs or Bill Gates, or historical figures such as Malcom X, Caesar Chavez, Rosa Parks, etc., you can help. Call 375-7800, ext. 2321.

Bulky waste drop-off

The City of West Sacramento's annual 'bulky waste drop-off' event returns from May 7-10 at 540 Harbor Boulevard. The event will be from 4-7 p.m. on weekdays and 9-3 on Saturday.

Here's your chance to unload old furniture, mattresses & box springs, cardboard and tires (up to nine). Open to local residents: bring proof of city residency such as a city utility bill or driver's license with your address. Those 65 and up, or with a disability may request pickup service by calling 617-4589.

Wood and green waste is not accepted at the event, but you can look for a landfill voucher in your August city utility bill.

More info: www.WestSacRecycles.org or 617-4589.

Pasta for veterans

The River City High School leadership class invites all U.S. military veterans to a free dinner of spaghetti with meatballs or pesto, 5:30-8 p.m. on Thursday, May 15, at the VFW Hall, 905 Drever Street.

Non-veterans are asked to make a donation for dinner: $6 for adults, $4 for students and seniors, $20 for a family of four.

Fair exhibitors

Catalogs for Yolo County Fair exhibitors are now available at all Yolo County libraries (including West Sacramento's, at 1212 Merkley Avenue), as well as in the Woodland library and the Fair's office. You may also get fair entry information online at www.yolocountyfair.net. Supporting nonprofits

A number of nonprofits in the region are participating in the "Big Day of Giving" for a 24-hour period on May 6 (midnight, May 5, to midnight, May 6). Among them is the West Sacramento Historical Society, which is hoping to raise $6,000.

Donations during the drive may be "boosted" by pools of eligible matching funds. Visit www.givelocalnow.org.

Garden info & bazaar

Trinity Presbyterian Church invites you a workshop on gardening during their "Dirt to Dinner" event from 8 a.m. to noon, May 3, at 1500 Park Blvd. Learn more about raising food in your garden or on your patio – including the use of cisterns, roasting your own coffee, raising chickens, keeping bees, and more. Live music.

In addition, you may purchase a locally-produced lunch and shop for plant seedlings, baked goods and items from the bazaar.

School 'yard sale'

Holy Cross Academy will host a yard sale from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. on May 25 at 800 Todhunter Ave. Buy something to eat or something to take home. Vendor slots available – stop by the school for information.

Blues in the Black Box

Join "The Legendary Mike McGowan and the Mighty Delta Roadmasters" for an evening of music. The blues concert is a fundraiser for the Learning Ladder preschool.

Doors open at 7 p.m. for the event on May 17. Tickets are $25 at the door. Refreshments will be sold by Broderick restaurant. The "Black Box Theater" is inside the community center, 1075 West Capitol Avenue.

Zip yourself a book

"Zip Books" has arrived.

A cardholder unable to find a particular print book in the Yolo County library system can make a "Zip Book" request, and the library will attempt to buy a copy at Amazon and have it shipped straight to the cardholder's address. When finished with the book, the customer can just return it to the service desk at the library for special processing. The new book may then become part of the library's collection.

The service is made possible by a grant from the California State Library, and is available to cardholders with less than $10 in overdue fines. Start your book search at www.yolocounty.org.
